The Pension Bureau.

It Furnishes a Subject for a Cabinet Discussion.

MR. TANNER'S DAYS NUMBERED.

He Has not Been Suspended or Asked to Resign, but Probably Will in the Near Future—Several Statesmen Anxious to Succeed Him—Other Dispatches from Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The retention, removal and resignation of Commissioner of Pension Tanner, were subjects of protracted conferences at the executive mansion yesterday between the president and most of his cabinet officers. Informal conferences were held during the day between the president and Secretaries Noble and Tracy; but the formal cabinet meeting to discuss the matter did not convene until nearly 4 p. m., and lasted until about 6 o'clock.

Secretary Noble was with the president as early as 2 o'clock. He brought with him the report of the committee which has investigated rerating in the pension office during Commissioner Tanner's administration, presumably to be used as an argument for securing the commissioner's vacation of the office. Members of the cabinet are extremely reticent about what happened at the meeting. The president, however, authorized a representative of the United Press to state that "Commissioner Tanner had not been removed, and that he had not asked for the commissioner's resignations."

Commissioner Tanner declined to talk about the imbroglio, further than to say that he had not been suspended and had not resigned. Efforts are undoubtedly being made to induce the commissioner to resign, by offering him another equally lucrative and honorable position, but whether he will yield to such persuasion is not known, and further conferences and more time is needed to settle the matter. Now that it is generally believed that Commissioner Tanner will vacate or must go, rumor is rife with candidates to succeed him. Ex Pension Agent Poole, of New York, and ex-Congressmen Brown, of Ohio, and Thomas, of Illinois, are already mentioned among others for the place.

Gorton Back from New York.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Vice President Morton arrived here yesterday from New York and called at the White House in the evening while the president and his cabinet were considering the case of Pension Commissioner Tanner. He was shown in the cabinet room and joined in the discussion.

Graff Will Get It.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—It is now definitely settled that Judge Graff, of Omaha, will be appointed commissioner of the general land office. Judge Graff was the leading candidate for interstate commerce commissioner against Judge Veazy, of Vermont, who recently received that appointment.

SLOW WORK.

But Little Progress Made in Securing a Jury to Try the Cronin Suspects.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Twenty-five talesmen of the ninth venire and six of the tenth were examined in the Cronin trial yesterday. Ten peremptory challenges were used, five being credited to each side. The state has now used eighteen and the defense thirty-eight of its one hundred challenges. Three men were held over when the court adjourned. The eleventh venire was issued last night.

Searching for Evidence.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 12.—Detective George E. Williams is here working out some important clews in connection with the Cronin case. Mr. Williams, who has been here three days, is now possessed of information that will be of the greatest value in connection with the trial of the conspirators.

Shot a Conductor.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 12.—William Braill, of Hopkinsville, Ky., boarded a Louisville and Nashville train yesterday evening without a ticket and refused to pay the extra fare asked. Conductor Lemon, an old and trusted official, stopped the train at Baker's Station and Braill was put off. Braill was terribly enraged and drew a revolver and fired, shooting Lemon through the head, killing him instantly. The murderer at once took to the woods and has not yet been captured.

Tanner to Succeed Rosecrans.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—A Washington special says that Tanner is to succeed Gen Rosecrans as register of the treasury and that Congressman McKinley, of Ohio, has been offered the position of commissioner of pensions. McKinley left Chicago last night for New York to attend the funeral of Congressman Cox. From there he will go to Washington, but it is understood he will decline the position, as he has strong hopes of becoming speaker of the house.

Attacked the Wrong Man.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 12.—James C. Rose, a young son of Dr. W. B. Rose, walked into a saloon yesterday evening and was instantly attacked by John Cook, a hotel runner, who, mistaking him for another man, used a knife with probably fatal effect, cutting his face almost to pieces. Cook was knocked down, but getting on his feet renewed the attack. He was arrested. Young Rose is in a critical condition.

Grand Sachem of Tammany.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—A. B. Tappan was yesterday elected grand sachem of Tammany Hall, in place of Sheriff Flack, resigned.

FIGHT TO A FINISH.

McAuliffe Knocks Out Pat Killen in Seven Rounds.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—A fight to a finish, Queensberry rules, between Pat Killen, heavy-weight champion of the northwest, and Joe McAuliffe, ex-champion heavy-weight of the Pacific coast, for a purse of $2,500, $700 to the loser, took place at the Golden Gate Athletic club last night. McAuliffe weighed 203 pounds, and Killen 195. Paddy Ryan and Con Reardon seconded McAuliffe, while Professor Anderson and Dave Campbell performed that duty for Killen.

In the first round McAuliffe got in a left-hand blow on Killen's ribs and a right-hander on the jaw. In the second honors were about even, but McAuliffe landed a hard right-hander on Pat's ear. In the third Killen was forced into his corner and badly punished about the head. The fourth was without incident. In the fifth McAuliffe drove Killen to his corner, upper-cutting him. Killen returned with a rush, but McAuliffe clinched. The row ended with a blow that dazed Killen, but McAuliffe did not follow up his advantage. In the sixth and seventh rounds Killen acted on the defensive, and was finally clinging to the ropes when McAuliffe upper-cut him, and it was claimed that Killen was down at the time, but amid much confusion the referee decided otherwise, and gave the fight to McAuliffe. McAuliffe drew the only blood.

PLENTY OF HOGS.

The Crop for the Present Year Will Equal That of Last Year.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—The Farmers' Review will publish the following: The reports of our correspondents indicate that the hog crop of 1889 equals and probably exceeds that of 1888. The supply in Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Kansas is somewhat less than that of last year. Wisconsin and Missouri have about the same number of hogs, while Kentucky, Iowa, Nebraska, Michigan, Minnesota and Dakota show an increase, particularly the state last mentioned.

As a rule hogs are reported unusually healthy for the season of the year. A number of correspondents report scattering cases of hog cholera, but very few general or disastrous outbreaks.

We summarize as follows the reports of our correspondents, comparing with last year: Illinois, 98 per cent.; Indiana, 95; Ohio, 97; Missouri, 96; Kentucky, 103; Iowa, 105; Kansas, 97; Nebraska, 104; Michigan, 103; Wisconsin, 99; Minnesota, 103, and Dakota, 116.

Railroad Employes Arrested.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Frank Johnson, a conductor on the New York Central railway, and Edward L. Badgley, one of the gatemen at the depot, were arrested by detectives here last night. The complainant is W. R. Gillett, auditor of the road. The officers claim to have obtained evidence that Johnson would take up tickets on the train and not punch them, and when he arrived in Buffalo would hand them to Gatekeeper Badgley, who disposed of them at scalpers' offices. Just what the extent of their operations is cannot be ascertained, but it was decided to arrest both on Tuesday night. Both men were arraigned in the police court and admitted to bail to appear for further examination.

A Double Lynching.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 12.—A special to The Chronicle says that Frank Stack, a white man, and Dave Boone, colored, were lynched at Morgantown, Burke county, about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, by a mob of some 150 men, who overpowered the jailor and broke open the prisoners' cells. Stack was in jail on the charge of shooting Robert Parker last August, and Boone was charged with killing Eli Holder, a white man, at a camp meeting ground, about two weeks ago. It is said that Boone confessed, but that Stack protested his innocence to the last. The jailor claims to have recognized three of the lynching party, and warrants have been issued for their arrest.

West Virginia's New Governor.

TERRA ALTA, W. Va., Sept. 12.—The gubernatorial committee finally adjourned yesterday, and will not again meet until the secretary has completed the formal report for presentation to Governor Wilson and the legislature. The work of the committee makes Judge Fleming's majority 212. In other words, there has been a gain for him during the examination of the vote of the several counties of 325. Gen. Goff having 110 majority to start with. The concluding work of the committee was in the six counties of Logan, Monroe, Roane, Raleigh, Pleasant and Wayne. In those counties Goff gained twenty-three votes.

Shot His Mother for a Burglar.

DECATUR, Ill., Sept. 12.—The many burglaries in this city of late have led many persons to sleep with firearms at hand. Early yesterday morning Mrs. Starr, a wealthy widow, was shot dead by her son, Harry Starr, who saw her figure move across a room adjoining his own, and fired quickly without awaiting to make any investigation. The bullet passed entirely through the unfortunate woman's neck, killing her instantly.

A Fated Structure.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—The Burton building, corner of Van Buren and Canal streets, was recently burned down. The rebuilding of it was nearly completed when, this morning, it was again gutted by fire. Loss variously estimated at from $25,000 to $30,000.

Miners on a Strike.

MT. CARMEL, Pa., Sept. 12.—Four hundred miners at the Morris Ridge colliery have struck to compel the operators to observe the semi-monthly pay-day law and reduce the price of powder.

Whitechapel Victim.

Medical Testimony Taken at the Coroner's Inquest.

THE REVELATIONS KEPT SECRET.

A Startling Rumor that May Lead to a Clew if Properly Investigated—Former Whitechapel Victims—The London Dock Managers Appeal for Protection. Other Foreign News.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The inquest in the case of the woman, whose headless body was discovered in the Whitechapel district Tuesday morning, was conducted with closed doors, and extraordinary precautions are taken to prevent the medical testimony in the case being made public.

The rumor is afloat, but cannot be traced to an authoritative source, that one of the doctors has pointed out that the surgical work of the fiend who committed the murder bears a remarkable resemblance in certain features to peculiarities which have frequently been noted by the profession in the work of a well known London surgeon, a man of the highest standing in his profession, but exceedingly eccentric. The police maintain a discreet silence, and refuse to either deny or verify the rumor. They appear to be active, however, and their conduct indicates that they have a clew of some kind.

The generally accepted list of the Whitechapel's victims up to date is as follows:

1. Unknown woman, past middle age, Whitechapel outcast, found dead in October, 1887, with body horribly mutilated. Little attention paid to the case.

2. Martha Turner, found Aug. 7, 1888, stabbed in sixty-two places, probably with a bayonet.

3. Polly Nichols, found Aug. 31, head nearly severed from body.

4. Annie Chapman, found Sept. 8, horribly carved.

5. Elizabeth Stride, found Sept. 30, body warm when found, but mutilated like the others.

6. Catherine Eddowes, found the same morning, body and face horribly disfigured.

7. Mrs. Mary Jane Lawrence, found Nov. 9, head nearly severed, face lacerated almost beyond recognition, breast cut off and laid on a table, heart and liver removed and matrix missing; body literally hacked to pieces.

8. Elizabeth Jackson, body found in sections between May 31 and June 25, 1889.

9. Alice Mackenzie, alias Kelly, found in Castle ally, dead, but with body still warm, June 17, 1889, mutilations not completed; knife evidently dull.

10. The present case.

Dock Managers Appeal for Protection.

LONDON, Sept. 12. The dock managers sent a representative to Chief of Police Monro, imploring him to take steps to prevent the strikers from posting pickets about their premises for the purpose of intimidating the men who have been engaged to work on the docks. These men, they say, are willing and anxious to go to work, but are frightened off by the threatening language and menacing insinuations of the pickets.

The chief of police replied that he held himself ready to protect the companies in their rights, and if these were being interfered with he would take such steps as seemed necessary to prevent a continuance of such interference. Their proposal, however, involved a fine question of law, and he should prefer before taking action to advise himself as to the point. The pickets probably had a right under the law to accost persons on the public highway and advise them to refrain from work, and if their action amounted to no more than this he did not see his way clear to using the police for their suppression. Just the point where advices stopped and intimidation began might be a difficult matter to determine, the more, especially if persons who are claimed to have been intimidated make no complaint. He advised the dock managers to reduce their complaint to writing, and to indicate at the same time what particular law or ordinance they claimed the pickets were violating.

Stanley Marching to the Coast.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 12.—The Mouvement Geographique says that Stanley is marching to the coast with Mombassa as his objective point. From information just received from an absolutely trustworthy source, it learns that Stanley after fighting his way through and conquering Umijira and Uganda, established the authority of the British East Africa company from the upper Nile to the east coast. It is extremely doubtful that Emin is with Stanley, all information tending to show that he remained behind.

Cause of the Antwerp Disaster.

ANTWERP, Sept. 12. The official inquiry into the causes which led to the disastrous explosion and conflagration in this city is progressing. The proceedings are being conducted secretly. It is officially denied that the cartridges which exploded in the factory contained dynamite. It is believed that the explosion occurred in the cartridge factory before the petroleum reservoir caught fire.

And She Will Go With Him.

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—The Cologne Gazette's St. Petersburg dispatch states that the czarina will accompany the czar on his visit to Berlin, which will occur Sept. 20.

Mrs. Margaret Dillard, whose husband was murdered at Easton, Pa., on the 6th inst., has confessed that she asked her paramour in killing him.

WANTS TO COME BACK.

Wilson Sherman is Willing to Surrender to the Authorities.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Wilson H. Sherman, of grain shortage fame, is said to have grown tired of his exile in Canada, and is willing to return here and surrender to the authorities. He is wanted on charges of forgery. He is said to be in hiding near Hamilton, Ont. The assistant district attorney went to Canada yesterday, and it is said his trip is connected with Sherman's return.

LATER Sherman was arrested at Toronto yesterday afternoon. The prisoner was remanded till the 19th inst., and will be tried then by Judge McDougall in his chambers at Toronto.

Asking More Wages.

DUNOIS, Pa., Sept. 12. Bell, Lewis & Yates' miners held a meeting yesterday, and decided to demand an increase of five cents a ton or strike. A committee was appointed to confer with S. B. Elliott, superintendent for Bell, Lewis & Yates. Should their demand be refused 600 men will strike. The men are receiving forty cents a ton.

The market, outside of Reading, Lackawanna and Erie, showed little animation, but a firm tone prevailed in the early trading and small fractional advances were established in the active shares. This was followed by a reaction, and prices were brought down to a shade below the opening figures.

Great Destruction

Caused by the Storm Along the Atlantic Coast.

COMMUNICATION ESTABLISHED.

At Least Fifty Lives Were Lost in Delaware Bay, and the Destruction to Property Will Reach Five Million Dollars. Many Vessels Wrecked All Along the Atlantic Coast.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—Superintendent Dayton, of the West Jersey railroad, says that when railroad and telegraph communication with Atlantic City were re-established it was found that no serious damage to property had been done by the storm and that no lives had been lost. The fire, of which rumors had got afloat, proves to have consumed only half a dozen shanties of small value at the southern end of the island. The board walk, with the booths, pavilions and places of amusement located thereon, were destroyed by the waves. The Shelburne hotel, which is the most exposed of all the hotels, was but slightly damaged.

There is now but one serious washout on the Camden and Atlantic road between Pleasantville and Atlantic City, and Superintendent Dayton expects this to be repaired in a few hours.

An attempt to run a steamer from Somers Point to Atlantic City had to be abandoned on account of the storm.

Postmaster Chester, of Sea Isle City, has reached the main land, and reported that place in very bad shape. The sea wall has been destroyed and fifteen houses washed away, including the Newland, Star and Shakespeare hotels. The Excursion house and Surf house may be destroyed. The Continental, the largest hotel there, is safe. No lives have been lost.

The schooners R. R. Leeds and Rebecca M have been lost. A number of yachts were wrecked at their moorings. Among the pleasure yachts sunk or driven out to sea are the Godfrey, Volunteer, Alert, Neptune, Cornet, Charles E. Wahl, Tillie Covert and Minerva. The fire early Wednesday morning was caused by a tin roof being blown off upon some electric light wires.

Late dispatches state that the storm was the most furious known to the oldest inhabitants. The beach from Rehoboth to Lewes is strewn with wreck. It is thought at least fifty lives were lost in Delaware bay. Men were seen clinging to the rigging of the still sinking vessels frantically yelling for help. The life saving crews were powerless to render assistance owing to the fury of the gale. It was a terribly sight to witness. Their bodies were washed ashore and were buried in the sand along the water. The loss to vessel property at the Breakwater will reach, it is thought, $5,000,000.

At Lamel, the storm has continued with unabated violence, but beyond demolishing a few outbuildings and fences and the uprooting of some trees, there has been no damage in this immediate vicinity. Further up the country peach orchards have been ruined, some having scarcely a tree left standing.

A despatch to The Record from Lewes, Dela., says: The loss of life in Delaware Bay by the storm has been almost as heavy as during the great blizzard of March, 1888. The two survivors of the wrecked schooners are Mate Jackson and Stewart Hunter, of the J. and L. Bryan, who had a terrible experience all night long and drifted ashore seventeen miles from the scene of the wreck.

A special from Dover, Del., says the storm has greatly damaged fruit, especially peaches and pears. Corn is also much damaged. Many fruit trees are torn up by the roots or broken off. Many cottages were swept away at the bay side summer resorts and at Kitts, Hammock and Bowers Beach. In Dover large trees were broken down. Much damage to shipping in the bay is reported.

A dispatch received from Atlantic City, via Absecon, N. J., gives the following particulars of the storm: The wind reached a velocity of over sixty-two miles an hour. The sea beat twenty feet high above the inlet pavilions. There was great alarm among the visitors and residents. A woman holding a child in her arms was lifted up by the wind and thrown into the water near the Howard pier. Mr. Walter Field, photographer, jumped in and rescued the woman and child. The people living in the houses beyond Baltic avenue, and the thoroughfare, had to be taken from second-story windows in boats by men, who rowed out for that purpose. These people are mostly negroes and are very poor. Many of these humble dwellings are ruined. St. Monicas Roman Catholic church, at Chelsea, was badly damaged. In fact, hardly a hotel or residence along the water front escaped damage, and some are ruined.

Vessels Wrecked on the Delaware Coast.

LEWES, Del., Sept. 12.—The storm still continues. A ship supposed to be the William B. Grace, from Havre for Philadelphia, is ashore on the point of the cape. Her masts are cut away and it is impossible for a boat to reach her.

Following are names of wrecked vessels: Schooners A. and E. Hooper, Addie E. Bacon, of Philadelphia, with coal; Emnity R. Dyer, J. D. Robinson, Maj. William H. Tantum and Nettie Chapman; brig Richard Green, with logwood; British bark Thomas Keiller and Danish bark Atalanta, supposed to be ashore at Point of Capes. Pilot boat Thomas F. Bayard dragged her anchors and came ashore this morning with keel gone. The crew of eleven men are safe. Schooner J. and L. Bryan, Capt. D. L. Risley, coal, from Philadelphia, went to pieces on a Fourteen-foot bank last night. The crew came ashore on pieces on wreck, but four others of the crew are undoubtedly lost. One man on the raft died and was thrown overboard. Lewes' life station is partly washed away, and the fog bell on the breakwater was washed ashore at Lewes.

The Damage at Ocean City.

SALISBURY, Md., Sept. 12.—The destruction wrought by the storm at Ocean City is great. All the porch columns at the hotels and cottages are washed away, the doors and windows broke, and furniture is floating about the beach. The seas last night were breaking to the second story of the Atlantic hotel and Congress hall, and waves ran six feet deep through the hotels. The furniture is floating in the rooms.

A train was sent last night to rescue the dwellers on the beach. The work was done by a large number of men joining hands and wading through water waist deep. They brought the women to the cars one by one, seated on their joined hands.

New York Recovering.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The river fronts begin to assume their wanted appearance, the rise of water having to a great extent subsided and nearly all the cellars and ware houses which were yesterday flooded by the extraordinary high tide, been pumped out. The damage will be very great. The waters continue very rough, but the high wind seems to have spent itself and the various ferryboats are running on time. The steamers plying between this and eastern and northern ports come in and and are leaving pretty well on scheduled time.

Shipping Paralyzed at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 12.—The terrible gale which raged for twenty-four hours, resulted in considerable damage along the Chesapeake. Reports are very meagre. Shipping at this port is particularly paralyzed, there being only three arrivals yesterday. The steamer D. H. Miller, from Boston, reports that a schooner was seen ashore on Point Lookout. The schooner Jennie Leffett, from the Kennebec river, was blown aground on Monday and is still there.

A Missing Catboat.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 12. Rev. C. M. Pegg, George N. Harford, Jacob Smith and Capt. Daniel Craft, of Norwalk, left that place in an eighteen foot catboat Monday afternoon for Long Island, and it is feared they were lost in the storm which raged shortly afterward. Telegrams to various Long Island ports have failed to elicit any information about the men. Parties have gone out in boats to search for them.

Pilots Carried Out to Sea.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Nine pilots were carried out yesterday on steamers which they were guiding from port. They could not find pilot boats outside to bring them back. Some will have to take involuntary trips to Europe, others to southern ports. By law they are entitled to $25 per week and first-class board during their enforced absence from port.

A Bridge Swept Away.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 12.—The highway bridge over the creek at Cheesequakes was swept away during the storm. The bridge cost $6,000. A railroad washout near Perth Amboy is reported and much damage has been done in this and adjoining counties. Wires are down and details cannot yet be obtained.

Communication Established.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 12.—Telegraphic communication between Norfolk and the coast has been reestablished. No disasters from the storm have been reported at Cape Henry. The wind is blowing only thirty miles an hour at Cape Henry.

Reports from Ocean Vessels.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Steamships arriving from the east and south report passing through a storm of almost unexampled severity.

COLLIERY CAVE-IN.

The Disaster at Poke Hollow Much Worse Than at First Reported.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 12.—The big cave-in at No. 5 colliery, Poke Hollow, is worse than was at first reported. The disaster is the greatest that has occurred in the coal regions for years. In some places the earth has gone down over twenty feet. The loss to the mine owners will exceed $100,000. Luckily there were no dwellings on the tract.

The cave-in affects about thirty acres of mining property belonging to the Delaware and Hudson company. About 1,500 men and boys will be thrown out of work, as it will take many months to put the mines in mining condition. Twenty-five men were at work in the mine when the crash came, but all of them managed to escape in safety. The bottom has fallen out of a number of cellars in the neighborhood, and a farm near by has partially toppled over.

The Derrick Broke.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 12.—By the breaking down of the big derrick known as the "traveler" at a brown stone quarry near Hummelstown, John Thomas, the engineer, was severely scalded by steam and Augustus Kinley had his arm broken and his back sprained.

Kentucky Troops Ordered Out.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 12. Governor Buckner has ordered one company of troops from Lexington and another from Harrodsburg to go to Harlan county to protect the court and witnesses on trial in connection with the Howard-Turner feud.

The President Will Be Busy.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 12.—A letter has been received stating that the president cannot attend the Piedmont exposition, owing to his inability to accept any invitations that will take him away from his public duties between now and the assembling of congress.

WITH the waterworks moving along so encouragingly and promise of earnest action on the sewerage matter, we shall yet be happy. But we need gas to swell the cup of joy.

GEN'L BEATTY continues to be very busy in attacking Gov. Foraker, and is consuming lots of space in Democratic papers. The General seems determined to win political fame and is doing so.

THE truth is, as Secretary Windom very clearly shows in his official statement, that the public debt has been diminished by more than twenty millions of dollars in the last two months. This reduction is more than three times as great as the reduction for the same period of time last year under the "Jeffersonian" administration of Mr. Cleveland.

COMMISSIONER TANNER'S resignation from the head of the pension department is not received with any degree of sadness in this or any other section of the country. His sympathy for the veterans led him into indiscretions as an officer and he went to extremes that promised to become dangerous. Some of the fraudulent applicants are doubtless disappointed, for they expected his liberality to rush their claims through, but this is only another evidence of the wisdom of his resignation.

Claridon-Adelaide.

Mrs. Gillson, who recently purchased the Coleman property here, is having a cellar excavated and otherwise improving the place.

Mrs. Cook, of LaRue, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Key, here.

Underwoods recently purchased a traction engine of the Huber company, of Marion.

Auditor C. W. McKee and wife and Legrand Britton and wife, of Mt. Vernon, were guests of Dr. Devore and family on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

We are gratified to state that Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Mozier, of Edison, have so much improved in health that they were brought to Mr. Howser's on Tuesday last.

John Weiss reports the State fair a little flat. He was there with his patent iron hay ladders.

A True Snake Story.

Our friend Hiram Foos, who was never known to exaggerate even a snake story, tells us that one week ago last Sunday Harry and James Clark, residing about five miles northeast of Marion, killed fifteen poisonous rattlesnakes in less time than it takes to tell the story. The two young men were crossing the James Likins' farm when one of them stepped on a plank laying on the ground. A warning rattle came, and they knew at once that the rattlers were hidden beneath the board. Clubs were securred and the plank turned over, when fifteen ugly snakes were found. A vigorous clubbing soon dispatched every snake, and after counting the dead, the boys retired from the scene of battle. Two of the snakes were very large for rattlers, but thirteen of them were less than eighteen inches long.

Senatorial Nomination.

A dozen or more Democratic delegates from this the Thirteenth senatorial district, met in this city today to attend the Democratic senatorial convention. The Marion Democracy knew hardly anything about the matter, but a meeting was provided at the court house and a number of Marion Democrats assisted the visiting delegates to nominate Col. W. F. Cessna, of Kenton, for state senator.

Col. Cessna is a well known and popular Democrat, but his candidacy is a hopeless one, hence the little interest in the convention.

The reunion of the Army of the Cumberland will occur on the dates originally named. Reports to the contrary are erroneous.

Prospect.

Corn cutting has been commenced by the farmers of this vicinity and the crop will be a very large one.

We noticed several young men from Morgan county here Tuesday, to engage for corn cutting.

A few of the farmers have begun sowing wheat since last week's rain.

The game of ball last Tuesday between the Mt. Victory aggregation and the Prospect Stars resulted in 9 to 16, in favor of the Stars. Our base ball club is a first class one in every respect, and for their age no better can be found in Ohio. The Stars play a game at Richwood Thursday. A good game is expected.

Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Osborn spent last week at Columbus, the guest of relatives.

Mrs. S. L. Wetring was the guest of relatives at Columbus during the fair.

A. C. Mounts spent a few days at Columbus last week.

The Methodists hold a festival in the Opera House Wednesday evening.

The Prospect high school, under the supervision of Prof. J. F. Miller, will give a course of lectures by prominent lecturers in the late fall. We hope the citizens will all help to make it a pecuniary success, as all profits will go to give advantages and improvements to the public schools, besides being a literary treat for all intelligent persons.

Mrs. Edna Ware, of Mechanicsburg, O., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gladden, this week.

The political caldron is beginning to boil here. The Democrats held their primary meeting Friday night. The candidates are becoming very numerous and judging by appearances some of them will be badly left in their convention Saturday. Campbell awakens no enthusiasm here—the old timers don't like "Calamus" very well, he has not been in the fold long enough. All true Republicans here will support Foraker and think some Democrats. I hear nothing more about the third term. That argument died young.

The Republicans of this locality would like to have a basket picnic here and have Gov. Foraker and Maj. McKinley deliver speeches. We want the committee to see to the matter and have it arranged in the near future.

F. G. Brown and family, of Findlay, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boyd this week.

Sept. 11. M.

A Description.

Her dimple cheeks are pale:
She's a lily of the vale,
Not a rose,
In a meadow or a lawn
She is fairer than the dawn,
To her beaux.

Her boots are thin and neat;
She is vain about her feet,
It is said.
She anticipates her sin,
But her eyes are like the stars
Overhead.

On a balcony at night,
With a fleecy cloud of white
Round her hair,
Her grace, ah, who could resist?
She would fascinate a saint,
I declare.

A young man from Philadelphia has lost his job as school teacher in Accomac county, Va., by chucking the girls under their chins in study hours and kissing them at recess.

In San Francisco one day recently watermelons sold so low that wholesale dealers, rather than still further glut the market, threw a consignment of 5,000 into the bay.

The house in which Oliver Wendell Holmes was born is still standing on the common at Cambridge, Mass., and is now one of the college buildings. It was not a gambrel roofed house, as I during the siege of Boston it was the headquarters of the American officers.

A party of fossil hunters are having good luck in the North Fork country of Oregon. They have found the bones of small horses with three toes on each foot, rhinoceros skulls and other bones that show, as they think, that Oregon had a tropical climate before the glaciers came down from the north and covered the land miles deep with ice.

One of the jewels which Col. North, the "nitrate king," brought back with him from Chili was a miniature canoe, fashioned of gold, after the model used by the Peruvian and Chilian warriors hundreds of years ago in the construction of their war canoes. Col. North announced that he felt much inclined to build a racing boat on the lines of this little canoe, and it is now rumored that he intends to furnish the Thistle in this manner.

STATIONERY NOVELTIES.

A big envelope and a very little one going from a lawyer make a very funny letter trip.

An oval of a tiny, cut glass mounted in a huge nickel ring with a pin runs set in the finish.

One of the most beautiful novelties shown is an oval pin tray of cut glass, in the rim of which is set in its rock an ink well.

An oval, open watch, of cut glass on a pin post, to which is affixed a tiny pencil, is head piece of a writing desk seal.

A gold bronze shoe and boot laces and buttons of the same material make a fine ink well, making a perfect baseball cup in miniature.

A beautiful shell for pencil sitting on its natural home in its mouth an envelope, the inside flap of which forms a red card receiver.

A satchel in oval form, with openings of natural leaf and buckle and saddle cloth of black and red, makes as pretty a paper as one could wish.

A fanciful little sprite, laughing in every line of his face, sits in a pair of red worsted shoes quite as large as himself, thus making a cute paper weight.

These and a myriad more equally pleasing to the eye for a time, the busy and the idle alike gaze, and then the busy one goes back to his work, while the idle one wonders what he can find to do next.

CHEYENNE, Wy. T., Sept. 12.—The statehood convention yesterday indorsed the Federal constitution. Propositions were presented fixing salaries for state officers, providing that all fees shall be turned into the treasury, and making the expenditure of money to secure preferment a felony. The plank disfranchising women was reported unfavorably. Two-thirds of the delegates favor universal female suffrage. The lower house of the legislature is to have thirty-one members.

DOXSEE'S PURE CLAM JUICE!

A Natural Medicine, an Agreeable, Not a Nauseous Dose.

"Throw physic to the dogs."
—Shakespeare or Bacon?

INVIGORATING and appetizing if taken cold before eating in the morning. It tones up the system, settles a disordered stomach. A gentle, but sure cathartic. If a multitudinal cocktail must be indulged in, it will counteract its bad effects as to stomach and brain. An absolute and sure preventitive of sea sickness. Its components are closely allied to the gastric juices of the stomach.

An Antidote to Intoxicants.

If taken regularly, fresh and cold, three times a day, before each meal, it will put the stomach in such a shape that the necessity for stimulants will not be felt, and excessive desire can be toned down to simple moderation. I shall keep Clam Juice constantly on hand to be served FREE, hot or cold, to my customers. Knowing positively from experience that it will do all that is claimed for it above, I will try in every way to promote its use, as it is not my wish to encourage excessive drinking, and if I can discourage it by giving away freely the only known antidote I will only be too glad to do so.

THE TALE OF A TOURIST.

He Wasn't So Very Particular, but He Had to Draw the Line.

"Have you anything to give a poor man, mum?"

The voice was that of a wan, haggard and dilapidated mendicant. Hat in hand, with bowed head and humble mien, he stood in the presence of the young housewife. The wind blew through his scanty, unkempt hair, and his toes looked mournfully out through the embrasures in his shoes in a weird, grewsome way that would have drawn a sigh of sympathy from a wax figure of Jessie James or melted the heart of a bridge tender.

"Have you walked far this morning?" she asked.

"Yes, mum," replied the jaded pilgrim. "I have hoofed it for about ten or eleven mile."

"Are you hungry?"

"Powerful gaunt in the stomach, like."

The tender hearted young woman meditated a few moments.

"I have nothing but a soup bone and some cold tripe to offer you," she said, "but you are welcome to them."

The tourist shook his head sadly.

"'Bliged to you, mum," he responded in a hollow voice, "but I'm a vegetarian. Hain't got no ham and eggs, I reckon?"

"I am sorry to say I have not. But stay!" she exclaimed as the forlorn applicant for charity turned to go. "Wouldn't you like something in the way of clothing, my poor man?"

"Yes'm," he replied, gratefully. "If you've got any old clothes about the house I'd be glad to get 'em."

With a light step and a heart full of happiness at the prospect of being able to do good to a suffering fellow creature she left him and returned presently with a small bundle.

"Here is a garment I heard my husband say he should not wear again," said the young wife. "It is perfectly clean and just as good as new."

"May I ask what it is, mum?"

"It is a flannel shirt."

"Been washed?"

"Oh, certainly—three or four times."

The battered tramp jammed his hat on his head and went slowly down the steps.

"Madam," he said, with a hopeless, just-as-I-expected intonation in his rich southwestern Missouri voice, "that is the 294th flannel shirt that's been stuck at me since I left East St. Louis, and I've got a pocket full of 'em."

As the hot sun came out from behind a cloud and beamed down pitilessly on the dusty highway the weary wanderer took from his bundle a jagged hunk of tobacco, looked at it in a hesitating and uncertain way, put it in his pocket, and started across the street in the direction of a house from which there seemed to emanate, as it were, a suggestion of fried pork.—Chicago Tribune.

Some Other Game.

A man with his left arm in a sling was telling a passenger on a Fort street car what ailed him and how it happened. Said he:

"My boy Henry likes to go hunting, and so last Soonday I takes my gun und goes oudt by der Norris road mit him to kill some squirrels. Pooty soon we vhas separated, und I goes along by a thicket und Henry shoots me mid his shotgun."

"Accidentally, of course?"

"Of course. He sees me creeping along, und takes me for a wolf."

"A wolf! Why, there isn't a wolf within five hundred miles of Detroit."

"Dot vhas so, but Henry doan' know it until we comes back home. He feels werry bad aboudt it. Henry vhas a good boy, und next time he doan' make sooch a mistake—he shoots me for a woodchuck."—Detroit Free Press

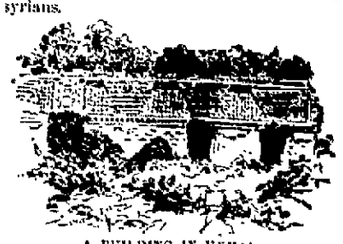
AMERICAN ANTIQUITIES.

THE FIELD IS LARGER THAN MOST PEOPLE HAVE ANY IDEA OF.

Some Remarkable Ruins Which Still Remain a Testimony to the Skill and Education Formerly Existing—People of Central America.

[Special Correspondence.]

BROOKLYN, Sept. 9.—American students and travelers flock to what they call the "old world" to see antiquities and ruins, paying very little or no attention to the fact that on this continent there is a more interesting—because more mysterious—probably older and equally vast, though almost unexplored field of ruined cities. Many ages ago when Egypt was in her splendor there were, in America, nations so advanced in arts and sciences, as their now crumbling walls testify, that in no way could they be considered inferior to the Egyptians, Chaldees or Assyrians.



A BUILDING IN UXMAL.

Some persons have a vague idea that before the white man arrived this great continent was inhabited only by nude savages that daubed themselves with paint and stuck feathers in their hair—a most erroneous belief.

That the ancient Americans were mathematicians, astronomers, architects, artists, is proved by what still remains of their remarkable work. Nor are we justified in asserting that they were ignorant of sciences which we of late years investigate. Should any of our cities be abandoned today, after a few centuries only parts of the strongest structures would remain to mark that site of civilization. Archæologists of those coming times might then say: "Yes, those people left big buildings, but they were, of course, half savage, and knew nothing about the things we understand." How mistaken those future wiseacres would be in their opinion of us! How mistaken we may be in judging of those who have preceded us! History teaches that nations are like individuals, gradually advancing to maturity, and then falling into decay.

The people of Central America were undoubtedly on their downward course when the Spaniards commenced war against them nearly 400 years ago; but in no respect were they savages, less so, indeed, in many things than the ruthless invaders.

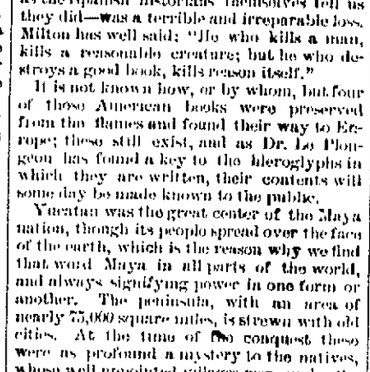
Palenque, Quirigua, Guatemala, Mexico and other places were all once thickly inhabited by people about whom very little is known; the ruins of their long deserted cities are hidden in dense forests, and an army of earnest workers is needed to explore and study them.

There is no richer field of antiquities than Yucatan, that sunny peninsula whose shores are caressed by the warm waves of the Mexican gulf and the Caribbean sea. The Spanish conquerors found that the people there had books of their own. In no other part of America had they found such marked evidence of culture, and their astonishment was great. Nevertheless, the European priests burned all the volumes they could lay hands on, maintaining that as they contained nothing concerning the holy Catholic religion they ought to be done away with. Such destruction of works containing an account of historical events and scientific knowledge—as the Spanish historians themselves tell us they did—was a terrible and irreparable loss. Milton has well said: "He who kills a man, kills a reasonable creature; but he who destroys a good book, kills reason itself."

It is not known how, or by whom, but four of those American books were preserved from the flames and found their way to Europe; these still exist, and as Dr. Le Plongeon has found a key to the hieroglyphs in which they are written, their contents will some day be made known to the public.

Yucatan was the great center of the Maya nation, though its people spread over the face of the earth, which is the reason why we find that word Maya in all parts of the world, and always signifying power in one form or another. The peninsula, with an area of nearly 75,000 square miles, is strewn with old cities. At the time of the conquest these were as profound a mystery to the natives, whose well appointed villages were under the shadow of those walls and pyramids, as they are to us now. Within some of the doors they occasionally ventured to beseech the favor of the Deity.

Temple and palaces, great public edifices, are the structures which have withstood the hand of time. They were built in a way that made them almost indestructible. Upon a rocky soil, into which nothing could possibly sink, the architects reared massive piles of dry stone, terraces and pyramids, generally about seventy feet high, faced with beautifully hewn stones. On these most solid foundations they built their edifices of white marble. Most of the walls are three, but some are nine feet thick. The facing stones are so closely fitted that nothing can be introduced between; the inner part of each is hewn in pyramidal form, and the filling of the wall is exceedingly hard concrete. The ornamental stones were skillfully carved, covered with stucco and painted in bright colors, red predominating and signifying power. Pictures alone can convey a correct idea of the intricate sculptures. The height of the rooms is generally twenty feet.



ANCIENT BUILDING AT CHICHEN ITZA.

In the city of Chichen the interior walls, finely plastered, were covered with fresco paintings, representing all manner of scenes; except in one case, only small fragments remain here and there. It was a delightful surprise to find in one room quite a number of figures, clear and bright, with all their colors, red, blue, green and yellow, and we made a correct copy. This collection of twenty tableaux is the only existing specimen of ancient American fresco paintings; they are deeply interesting, showing religious rites, warfare, etc.

On many of the walls we find red hands, the chief lines of the palm being distinct in some. Such hands enable us to know the stature of the people who stamped them there. The act of dipping the hand in red liquid and pressing it against the wall was a way of invoking a divine blessing on house and inmates; also a mark of possession. On one occasion a very old Indian, who had a liking for us—because generally those people won't open their lips about the customs of their forefathers—placing his own hand over one of those red imprints, said: "This means my house." In India the custom is observed yet by devotees, who make offerings of fruit and flowers to the gods, asking some favor in return. They dip their hands in red pigment and press them on the wall, so that their request and offering may not be forgotten.

The most prominent object on all the edifices is a great face, a conventional representation of the features of the American elephant or mammoth. These faces, with their large eyes, are in many places piled one above another, but only a few of the great projecting trunks remain entire. In very ancient times the Mayas venerated, as a symbol of divine power, the mammoth, because it was the biggest creature they knew of. It is not unlikely that the elephant worship in South Asia is an outgrowth of the American idea. The Mayas were not idolators; they worshiped Ku, creator of the universe, that they did not venture to liken to anything known to them, though they regarded the sun as his representative, his messenger, or servant, that supplied the earth with life and beauty.

As for serpent worship, the serpent was one of the emblems of their country, and like many other revered symbols represented an idea, never the creator. The natives are more idolatrous now than of old; they worship wooden images of saints, even praying to cheap wood cuts of such images. It matters not to them whether an image be ancient or modern. When we unearthed a fine old altar that had been buried hundreds of years, our men entreated us to give them one of fifteen stone figures on which it was supported, so that they might keep it in a shrine, and chant their Latin prayers before it.

The altar had been erected in memory of a famous warrior, that on it flowers and fruits might be offered to his manes—a custom that has been general throughout the world. We found the warrior's mausoleum containing his ashes—for the Mayas cremated their dead—and his statue. This statue is now in the national museum at Mexico; there are plaster copies of it at the Trocadero in Paris, and at the Smithsonian in Washington. The original was taken from us by force of arms after we had unearthed it with much difficulty and at great expense. The tomb was quadrangular; stairs on the four sides led to the summit, where there was the figure of a reclining leopard with human head, a sphinx representing the dead hero whose name was Leopard (Chuacmol). The mausoleum was covered with beautiful sculptures.

In those fresco paintings already mentioned we see the murdered warrior (his brother slew him) being prepared for cremation. The body is stretched on the ground and close by stands the sorrowing widow. Kneeling at the feet, and holding them as if stretching the limbs, is another woman. The corpse has been opened under the ribs; near by stands a weeping youth holding the extracted heart, while another holds between his hands what appears to be the brain.

Having made our way into the mausoleum, we found, besides the statue, which weighed 3,000 pounds, two large marble urns, the brain having been deposited in one, the heart in the other. Just so, the Egyptians, in mummifying their dead, used to preserve in urns the internal parts of the body.

Our Indian workmen had peculiar notions. They called statues enchanted people, and insisted that he who first laid hands on them after they were exposed to the light of day would die within a year.

We kept some of the matter found in the urn, desiring to have it analyzed; the rest we burned. The men stood by, one fanning the fire with his straw hat. Suddenly he darted off. All the others then took to their heels and scampered after him, not stopping till several blocks away. When asked why they had run, they said: "Ah! there was a strong smell of sulphur, and amid the smoke that arose from his charred remains we saw the form of the enchanted prince!"

ALICE D. LE PLONGEON.

Notes from Nova Scotia.

[Special Correspondence.]

QUEBEC, Sept. 8.—It is almost a pain to learn that only about one-third of Nova Scotia is fine valley land and that one-third of it is utterly useless to the farmer, because of rock, while the remaining third is of some value for pasturage. And it is a surprise, indeed, to learn that this little peninsula, which holds some of the oldest settlements on the American continent and some of the richest valleys in the world, also contains regions as wild as the rockiest wastes of Colorado, swamps in which the brown bear still finds a safe retreat, and densely wooded ridges where the moose is still hunted and from which flow mountain streams where the unsophisticated trout still "rises to the fly." And yet it is a pleasure as well as a pain, for the sportsman and the tourist have some rights as well as the statesman and political economist, and it is a positive satisfaction to find that one-half of Nova Scotia never will be thickly settled or cleared of its timber—that is, not within any time that need now be taken into account.

"It's all on account of the geology," say the local scientists. "Nova Scotia is peninsular in form, but is continental in formation. In this small area we have every kind of rock, from azoic to carboniferous and from old fire distilled flint to soft sand stone and drift. The strata are set on edge. On the southeast coast the reliable old granite stands against the storm of Atlantic at an angle just far enough from the perpendicular to give good resistance, and it stands off the Atlantic, too, slangily speaking. Going thence northwest across the peninsula, you cross successively the outcrop of each successive geological age, arcuean, silurian, devonian and carboniferous, till you reach that as yet undescribed age or era when the reptiles began to crawl above the coal beds, when the coal and limestone had taken the carbon out of the atmosphere and left it pure enough for lunged animals, when, in short, the pterodactyl fanned the languid air with his leathery wings and the iguanodon basked on the sunny banks of sweet deliverance."

This is the poetry of the scientific situation. The cold prose of it is that about one-third of Nova Scotia consists of fertile valleys, of which this is the largest and richest; that there is a line of lakes, rocky hills, farms and trout streams, moose grounds, bear haunts and black ponds along the central crest of the peninsula, while further south there are mines of almost every mineral useful to man, and in the east and northeast about 6,000 square miles of coal measures, in which are some of the largest and most noted coal seams in the world.

It is believed by many local amateurs in science that the sea once flowed along what is now Annapolis valley, it is not belief, but certainty, that the soil contains all the best elements that a receding sea might have left. It is something in the nature of a surprise to see fine vineyards and thrifty orchards, to learn that this is as good a field for apples as any in the world, and that 6 degs. below zero is the lowest the mercury has marked for many years.

The National Flour.

Upon the hill the golden rod,
With royal grace in every nod,
Salutes the sun, as far away
He heralds forth the joyous day.

Dainty in form, with perfume sweet,
Arbutus, in some cool retreat,
Expands her many graces rare,
And shuns the daylight's ruthless glare.

A dainty jewel richly set,
You find the modest violet;
Within some cool and shady grove
It welcomes those who chance to rove.

But, on a crisp and frosty morn,
Who sees the griddle cake with scorn?
Above them all its merits tower,
The good old fashioned buckwheat flour.

The first bushel of Velvet Shrivelled wheat which farmers of the great Northwest sometimes harvest when they expected the plump berry, has been looked upon as almost useless for seed, but experiments at the Minnesota state experimental farm go to prove that as good a grain can be grown from this shrivelled wheat as from selected seed. This is of interest to all farmers whose crops are likely to be nipped prematurely by the frost.

Although much complaint has been made regarding the condition which the old cemetery, north of the railroads, is now in, no one who is properly authorized to take action in the matter and have the cemetery cleaned has as yet put in an appearance. Y., P. and O. depot, and give persons passing through the city an idea of what an enterprising city Marion is.

—Prof. Edward Orton, who occupies the chair of geology in the Ohio State university, advises that natural gas in Western Pennsylvania be used for domestic purposes only, holding that the present lavish expenditure of factories for all purposes will be used up in a few years. In Ohio, says a portion of the Findlay field is already exhausted, and the Mercer county fields disappointing expectations. Prof. Orton states that the Columbus Gas company's shortage in supply, which it gets from the Findlay field at Lancaster, is [illegible]. He advises the Findlay people how to waste less gas that they are on the verge of a shortage already.

JAKE NAPPER CAPTURED.

Authorities at Parkersburg, W. Va., Arrest a Fellow Who Answers Every Description of the Murderer of Ed Uhl.

Sheriff Kelly will leave tonight for Parkersburg, W. Va., whither he goes to identify a man who is believed to be Jacob Napper, who fatally cut Ed Uhl on the evening of last November 6th.

Chief of Police H. M. Dils arrested Napper, alias Hultz, the first of the week and immediately telegraphed that fact. Today Sheriff Kelly received a letter, stating that Hultz is surely the man wanted, tallying exactly to every discription sent out. A picture of the fellow was taken and forwarded with the letter and it very much resembles Napper, though he refused to sit so a decent picture could be taken. He claimed to guess what the picture was taken for, a fact that possibly suggests his guilt. He has been ill, a fact that had heretofore been communicated to Sheriff Kelly, and was arrested and is held on the charge of vagrancy, awaiting identification.

Prohibition Convention.

The Prohibitionists of Marion county met in mass convention at the City Hall on Wednesday, and had the largest attendance that has ever been given any convention of that party in this county.

The temporary organization was made by choosing Daniel Uncapher for chairman and W. T. Owen for secretary. In the permanent organization these gentlemen were succeeded by M. B. Chase in the chair, and Grant Monser for secretary.

Nominations were made with the following result: Representative, M. B. Chase, of Marion; auditor, G. L. Tatt, of Montgomery; treasurer, B. F. Waddel, of Richland; sheriff, D. J. Bowers, of Grand; commissioner, Josephus Monnett, of Scott; infirmary director, H. F. Swick, of Prospect.

Dr. Helwig followed with a very eloquent and able address.

In the evening M. B. Chase addressed a large audience, and, following him, Dr. Helwig again spoke. The doctor made a very good impression on the audience that heard him.
